Professional Profile

Dr Arabella Staniforth is a highly experienced Private GP in Kent, with over 30 years of clinical practice. She graduated from the University of London in 1994 with qualifications in Medicine and Surgery (MB BS), alongside a Bachelor of Science degree. Since then, she has built a trusted reputation for delivering compassionate, patient-focused healthcare.

Dr Staniforth holds postgraduate diplomas from the Royal College of Obstetricians and Gynaecologists (DRCOG) and the Faculty of Family Planning (DFFP), with a strong clinical interest in women's health, reproductive medicine and preventative care.

She joined the General Practice Register in 2006 and now serves as a Senior GP at Station Road Surgery in Kent. Known for her warm, approachable style and holistic clinical approach, she offers continuity of care for patients across all age groups.

With a long-standing commitment to improving health outcomes in the local community, Dr Staniforth continues to lead with compassion, expertise and a focus on preventative medicine.
