

Dr Robert Hadden

MA BM BCh (Oxon) FRCP PhD

NHS Practices

Maidstone Hospital, Kent, King's College Hospital, London

Professional Profile

Dr Robert Hadden treats patients in all areas of general neurology, including epilepsy, headache, Parkinson's and MS. He is part of the Kent Neuro Ltd group of neurologists and has a special interest in peripheral nerve diseases.

The regional peripheral nerve service at King's College Hospital, which he runs, is recognised as a Centre of Excellence by the GBS/CIDP Foundation International. He carries out clinical research and has written international guidelines on treatment of inflammatory neuropathies.

He qualified in 1992 from Oxford University Medical School. He was awarded a PhD for research on Guillain-Barré Syndrome, and was appointed consultant neurologist in 2004.

Special Interests

Peripheral nerve diseases, runs the regional specialist Peripheral Nerve Service

